Decide Against Cappel Estate In Injury Case

After four hours' deliberation, a circuit court petit jury awarded Mrs. Virginia Bowling of Mattoon $2,000 and her son James $150 for injuries allegedly suffered in an automobile crash Aug. 30, 1942 at the intersection of route 45 and the Mokena road. The verdict was reached and read in court Saturday morning by Circuit Judge James V. Bartley.

The defendant in the suit was Walter Cappel of Mokena, executor of the estate of John Cappel, retired cattle dealer who was killed in the crash.

Mrs. Bowling and her son were seeking $55,000 damages for personal injuries.

The law firm of Burke and Shenk represented the Bowlings while Mr. Cappel had for his attorneys Ray Faulkner and Charles Blim.

A suit against Mr. Cappel for $50,000 for personal injuries filed by Wm. Bowling, husband of Mrs. Bowling, is pending. He is also asking $1,000 for damages to his car. The case has been set for July 16 and a petit jury ordered for that day.

Mr. Cappel states the case will be appealed.

LET'S NOT FORGET

These are the days that each one of us should be helping to put over the 7th War Loan Drive and the continuing support to the Red Cross to help our servicemen to the best that we have to offer. But let us not forget the youth of today in our community.

It is true that a recreation field is being considered for Tinley Park in the future but in order to do something for the youth of today who wish to be active in sports of which baseball is America's No. 1 sport several athletic minded people who are interested in the youth of our community have made it possible for the boys to have full equipment for playing baseball.

Plans were made for the financial support of this equipment for the boys, but to date no favorable action has been taken. So we are making an appeal to the people of Tinley Park for their financial support. So when you are asked to contribute, just remember that the youth of today will be the men of tomorrow.

All the attendants of the bride wore white fine mesh gowns alike trimmed with lace and head pieces of white net and red roses. Each carried a bouquet of red roses.

JOLIET AND WILL CO. RECEIVE $202,731 OF GAS TAX MONEY

Will County and the municipality of Joliet received $202,731 in allotments from 1944 Illinois state gasoline tax receipts, compared with $179,797 in 1943, according to a statistical analysis prepared by Marcus, Kindred and Company of Chicago specialists in Illinois municipal bonds.

Of the funds distributed by the state, Will County's 1944 share was $151,653 an increase of $24,111. Joliet received $51,078 a decrease of $1,177.

For Illinois as a whole, counties received a total of $7,907,275 in net allotments from 1944 state gasoline taxes, compared with $6,304,442 in 1943, while municipalities received $8,428,652 as against $8,834,766 in 1943. The increase in 1944 net allotments to counties was due to the fact that debt service on the state's $20,000,000 bond issue was considerably less in 1944 than in 1943. Gasoline tax receipts totaled $35,034,965 last year compared with $34,937,592 in 1943.

Wm. C. Bettenhausen, Supervisor of Green Garden Township For 24 Years, Dies

Wm. C. Bettenhausen, supervisor of Green Garden Township for the past 24 years, died in his home in Green Garden last Friday following a lingering illness.

Supervisor Bettenhausen was born in Green Garden township April 4, 1880. He was the eldest son of John M. and Sabina Bettenhausen. Thru the death of his mother when he was 19, he shared with his father much of the responsibility of the care of a family of younger children.

October 8, 1903 he was united in marriage with Mary Ann Krapf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Krapf of Green Garden township. They established their home on a farm where they have resided since. This union was blessed with four children, Edna, Earl, Wesley and Wm. Jr. the latter now serving in the army overseas in Germany.

Mr. Bettenhausen was very active in the community and public life of Green Garden township. He served as town clerk and assessor for several years, as supervisor for 24 years. In all of these duties as a public administrator he was a faithful servant of the people. As a reward for his years of faithful service he was elected to the presidency of the Will County Forest Preserve Board. He was also selected as a member of the Will County Board of Review.

He was president of the Frankfort Grain Co. The Peotone Community high school several years ago elected him a director, as also did the local school district in his own community.

But of even greater importance to those who lived in most intimate touch with Mr. Bettenhausen, was his place of service in the church. He gave freely of his time and personal thought to the organization of the Sunday School and the church year after year in loyal support of the pastors who were appointed to the Green Garden Methodist church. He was for years Sunday School Superintendent of the First church; also assistant Supt. of this church. He was President of the Board of Trustees of the church and was a local preacher of this church for many years.

Surviving are his wife, the four children above mentioned, four grand children, four brothers Henry, Edwin Carl and Alvin; two sisters Emma and Alma.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the late home to the Green Garden Methodist church which were attended by many hundreds of people. County officials also attended the last rites. Rev. L. E. Winter officiated. Burial was made in the Methodist cemetery.

Other members on the board are: Wm. Hansen, Emil Lenhardt, Alfred Zechlin, A. C. Bauch.

Preceding the election a movie picture, "Naval Engagement in the Philippine Islands with the Japs" was shown. This was a real action picture and quite exciting.

For the past four years the Lions Club have been holding their meetings in the parlors of the Methodist church and the Ladies Aid have served the monthly dinners.

Owing to the scarcity of help and shortage of ration points, the Ladies Aid has been obliged to discontinue this service and the last monthly dinner for the time being was served Tuesday evening.

The Lions club has not fully decided just where they will hold their future meetings and whether they will continue to have meals with their meetings. This matter will be finally decided at the July meeting.

Arrangements are to be made for another meeting place which will be announced later.

NEW LENOX INCORPORATION COMMITTEE REPLIES TO QUESTIONS

How will incorporation affect the New Lenox school? The thought behind this question is whether in the allocation of money the school will receive less in order to provide for a village government. Mr. Rhodes, the Will County Treasurer, stated that the school allotment would not be affected as a result of incorporation. We can add that the administration of the school would also be unaffected.

The New Lenox school will benefit by incorporation. Should the people decide to have local police protection one of his duties will be to curb the breaking of windows and the nuisance caused by unauthorized entry into the building.

A more important benefit however would result from the village officers working with the school board to plan for the future. All authorities agree that there will be a great movement of people from large cities after V-J day. This means that the population of New Lenox may double in the next five to ten years. Will the present school ground be adequate for twice as many pupils? If U. S. 30 is built on Haven Ave. some of the school ground will be taken to widen the street. There will be a safety hazard in having the school with an insufficient playground right next to a transcontinental highway.

A local government surely can go a long way in planning with the school board for an adequate program for the next ten years.

The second question was whether New Lenox high school students will be required to pay tuition to attend JTHS after the village is incorporated. The answer is No. Tuition is charged of students from communities that have educational facilities through four years of high school.

Phone or mail your questions regarding incorporation to Les Brownlee, Geo. Koeller, Harvey Frick or Dean Bright. We'll have more answers in this column next week.

Fire Dept. To Solicit Funds For New Equipment

At a meeting held last Monday night in Hatch's hall, Mokena it was decided to change the name of the Mokena Volunteer Fire Dept. to Mokena Community Volunteer Fire department. This would enable the department to solicit funds in its own name for the purchase of much needed fire equipment.

There is no hope of the Village being able to purchase this equipment as the amount derived from taxes for fire protection is so small that even the purchase of some very badly needed hose created quite a burden.

It was decided to solicit funds and if ample funds were subscribed, to purchase an additional truck. Funds would also be solicited from the surrounding rural area as it was felt neither the village nor the rural area by themselves could raise the required amount.

This truck would answer all calls and with its large water capacity would be in action many minutes in advance of the present truck which would lay hose from hydrants.

The new truck with its large water capacity and late model nozzles would also be the ideal type for fighting farm fires.

The new organization would consist of seven trustees composed of three residents of the village, three residents of the rural area and a chairman. In this manner the proper use of the funds would be assured.

It was also decided to obtain a state charter for the organization.

The Mokena Community Volunteer Fire Dept. hopes to have the cooperation and good will of everyone.

Thunderhead

MARY O'HARA
W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Thunderhead, or the Goblin as he is commonly known, is the only white horse ever born on the Goose Bar ranch in Wyoming. He grew from an ugly, misshapen colt to a powerful yearling, showing more and more characteristics of his great grandsire, a wild stallion called the Albino. One day the Goblin wanders southward into the mountains. An eagle attacks him, and he runs home in terror. Soon, however, he goes back, and finds a valley in which wild horses live. He encounters the Albino, and barely escapes with his life. Meanwhile his mother, Flicka, is bearing her next foal. The birth is premature, and the veterinarian is in attendance.

CHAPTER XI

"Sacrifice the foal," said McLaughlin, "the mare won't stand much more."
"May not have to," said Doc. "I'm not stumped yet."
They fastened a block and tackle to the wall and ran the rope through it. Then Doc fetched an instrument like a pair of ice tongs, and to Ken's horror, thrust the points into the foal's eye sockets. Then they all pulled together.
It moved a little. Flicka heaved and struggled convulsively. The men hauled until they were red in the face. And suddenly the whole little body slid out.
Instantly the men undid the ropes and Gus went to prepare a hot mash for Flicka.
The doctor knelt over the foal, which was barely alive.
"Is it premature?" asked Nell.
"It might be a little. The teeth are just through. When was the mare bred?"
"We don't know exactly."
"Will it live?" asked Ken.
The doctor did not answer. He wiped the foal dry and clean, massaged it and gave it a hypodermic injection. It was a very small but neatly made filly. It had a short back, long spidery legs close together and a small fine head with a dish face. It was a pinkish yellow with blond tail and mane.
"Just like Flicka!" exclaimed Nell.

"Will it live?" insisted Ken.
"Can't say for sure, it's pretty weak. But sometimes these little fellows surprise you. It's just touch and go."
They were all astonished to see that the terrible hooks had not injured the foal's eyes at all.
Nell noticed Ken's face. It was white and drawn. When Flicka suffered he suffered. She wondered if, after all the suffering, there would ever be any good thing come from the Albino's blood. Would it be, perhaps, this tiny filly?
Soon Flicka was able to get to her feet and eat her mash. The filly showed signs of life and struggled to rise. Doc and McLaughlin lifted it and held it up underneath its dam to nurse. When the teat touched its lips it opened its mouth and began to suck, and everyone watching smiled and relaxed.
When it had had enough, it was put down on the hay again and the veterinarian prepared to leave.
At this moment, a shadow at the door blocked out the sunlight. They turned to look and saw the Goblin standing there.
If Ken had seen someone returned from the dead he could hardly have felt a more violent shock. Over his whole body there poured a wave of heat, followed by such bliss that he could not see clearly.
Then Gus's voice exclaimed, "Yiminy Crickets! Look at him! He's tore to pieces!" And Ken's eyes cleared and he saw the wounds and scars on Goblin's white coat and rushed to him.
Goblin was startled and fled around the corral. He did not, however, go out of the open gate, but circled and came hesitatingly back. McLaughlin reprimanded Ken sharply, then, himself, went quietly toward the colt, his eye running over him. "Steady, old boy! Gosh! Look at that ear! That's a nice fellow—what a rip in the shoulder!"
"And there's a piece chewed out of his fanny!" said Howard.
"That colt's sure been in a fight," said the vet, eyeing the swollen shoulder wound. "That was done by a hoof, and a mighty big one, I'd better take a look at it while I'm here."
"Get a bucket of oats, Howard," said McLaughlin, "and Ken, bring the halter."

The Goblin was ravenous for the oats. They halted him and McLaughlin and the vet examined his wounds.
"Look here," said Doc, "here are some other wounds that are nearly healed. He's been in two fights. Look at the mark of claws here on the other shoulder—might have been a wildcat."
"And," said Howard excitedly, "look at the little scars all over the underside of his neck and belly—what did that?"
They were scattered snags, nearly healed. Doc was puzzled. He shook his head. "Might be wire snags," he said doubtfully.
Every time the Goblin lifted his nose out of the bucket he turned his head toward Nell. She smoothed his face, wondering if this ended all their future hopes. That shoulder wound looked deep. If it had reached the bones or tendons—
Rob voiced her thought. "This shoulder wound, Doc—will it hurt his speed?"

"I don't think so," said Doc. "It was a glancing blow."
"What gets me," said McLaughlin, "is how did he get in here? There's a four-strand barbed-wire fence between this pasture and the county road."
Doc laughed as he pulled on his shirt. "My guess is, you've got a jumper."

"I've seen plenty of wooden fences in the east jumped." Rob shook his head. "But horses don't jump these wire fences. No—there must be some gates open somewhere up the line."

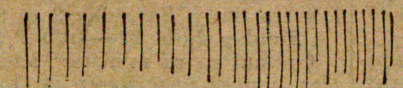

"Train him for a hunter," said Doc, "and send him east to a hunt club. You'd get a big price for him. He's a husky—how old is he? A long yearling?"

"A short yearling," said Ken proudly. "He was foaled last September."

"By Jinks!" said the vet. "He's a baby elephant."
"He's made a good beginning as a stallion," said McLaughlin dryly. "He'll carry these scars all his life."
"Gee! It must have been some fight!" exclaimed Howard excitedly. "Do you think he mixed it up with Banner, Dad? Banner's the only stallion around here."

"It might have been one of the other yearlings," said Nell. "They might have been fighting—"

"Not a hoof of that size," said Rob, indicating the shoulder wound. "It could only be Banner. If Goblin has started fighting Banner—but I can't understand Banner's giving him such punishment—the colt must have done something to deserve it."

They exchanged a flurry of blows.

But Ken didn't have the colt for long. He had been put into the home pasture, to be close at hand in case his wounds needed tending. Flicka and her filly were put there too as soon as the little foal could run at her mother's side. There sprang up between Goblin and his little sister one of those strange attachments that exist between horses. When he was near, she must leave her dam's side and wander to him. He would stand, his high head curved and bent to her. She would reach up her little muzzle to touch his face and neck.
The boys carried oats to them morning and evening. One morning the Goblin was not there. Rob examined all the fences. "I'm beginning to think Doc must have been right, and that he can jump these fences," he said frowning. "Unless he rolled under that place on the south side where there's a little hollow."

The boys saddled up and rode out to hunt for him. He was not with the yearlings, nor brood mares, nor the two-year-olds. He was nowhere to be seen.
This time Ken was not so unhappy. The colt had come back once—probably would again. The new fortune was sufficient for this strain upon it, although when he was ready to say his prayers that night, it did cross his mind to ask the Almighty if He thought it was quite fair to be an Indian giver? He suppressed this impulse as being not entirely respectful and, possibly, prejudicial to future favors.

The little filly grew and thrived. Her hoofs and bones hardened. She came to know the family, the dogs, the cats, and to be interested in all their comings and goings.

Nell named her Touch and Go. Rob McLaughlin was crazy about her. She meant something to him—the justification of his theory of line-breeding. His eyes were very keen and blue and narrow as he looked at her.

"Now there's a little filly that's got points!" he said. "Look at those perfect legs!"
He began to feed her oats almost from the start. He would let her mouth a few grains at a time. With plentiful feeding she would overcome the handicap of her premature birth—she had it in her. What she had in her would come out. They halter-broke and handled her early without any trouble at all.

"I always had a hunch that if Flicka was bred back to Banner I'd get something out of the ordinary."

They were sitting on the terrace after supper, Flicka and the filly near the fountain in the center of the Green. Suddenly they heard the thunder of hoofs from below in the calf pasture and saw, rounding the shoulder of the hill, the Goblin coming at a canter. Rob rose to his feet, astonished—how could the colt have got into the calf pasture?
In a moment they all knew. There was a four-strand barbed wire fence between the Green and the calf pasture. Goblin cantered easily up to it—swerved to aim at the gate post, and cleared it easily. He came cantering to Flicka and the filly, neighing a greeting.

"Well I'm damned," said Rob, then put his pipe back slowly into his mouth. "If he's started fighting Banner and jumping all the fences, there's going to be hell to pay from now on. This means he can come and go as he pleases."

The boys rushed down to the Green chattering excitedly.
Nell followed them with Rob. Goblin and his little sister were in an ecstasy of reunion.
"He's kissing her!" shouted Ken. "Look Mother! Look at Goblin!"
"It's simply ridiculous to call him Goblin," said Nell. "That's not a Goblin. That's Thunderhead."

There was a moment's silence. Ken felt his mother's words go right through him. It had come at last! The white foal seemed inches taller. He had grown in all his parts so that he had still that appearance of maturity and strange precocity—like a boy carrying a man's responsibility.
Nell looked up at her husband. "Don't you see, Rob? He's completely changed. He's been changed ever since he was lost the first time, when he got those awful cuts."
"How do you mean—changed?" demanded Howard.

"Well—sort of grown-up. More dignified. Something has come into him that was never there before, and it's ironed out a lot of his awkwardness and meanness. We must call him by his right name from now on—he deserves it."
"The Goblin is dead—long live Thunderhead," shouted Howard.
Ken got a bucket of oats and fed the wanderer. Then Flicka. Then offered the bucket to the tiny filly. She jabbed her inquisitive little nose into it, took it out with a few grains sticking to it and jumped away, mouthing them, tossing her head up and down.

"Dad," said Ken, "where does he go when he goes off—Thunderhead, I mean?" Ken almost blushed with embarrassment when he gave his colt the great title.
"I wish I knew," said Rob slowly. "And that jumping of wire fences—he's had no training—he's inherited that—straight from the Albino. He's an absolute throwback. That fellow was a great jumper. No fence could hold him."
When it grew darker they put the three horses down into the calf pasture.

"Not that it will do much good," said Rob dryly. "That bronc'll come and go as he pleases."
They sat on the terrace again for a while in the dark. Across the Green two hoot owls were calling to each other.
Rob said at last thoughtfully, "Well—Thunderhead can jump. Thunderhead can buck. Thunderhead can fight. But none of these accomplishments are important to a racer. It remains to be seen if Thunderhead can run."

Thunderhead could run, but another year passed before they knew it for certain. The boys had come home from school for their summer vacation again, and the colt, being now a two-year-old, was started on a course of intensive training.

He had had his freedom all winter. There had been times when, Rob and Nell knew, he was nowhere on the Goose Bar ranch. He went south—that much had been discovered. He stayed away awhile. He came back. But now that Ken was home and had begun training him in earnest, he was to be kept in all summer. No more gallivanting.

Ken worked with the colt for a fortnight. He went through the drill with halter, grooming, blanketing all over again. He rode him bareback, then with saddle. He rode him in the corral, neck-reining him, doing figure eights, making him back and advance, stand. Seldom was a day that he was not bucked off. He finally took him out of the corral and struggled with him in the open. The colt wheeled, lunged, balked—galloped a little, then fought and backed and refused—refused—then bucked. Ken remounted him and the fight began again.

Thunderhead didn't like his master. Often he seemed animated by a definite spirit of hatred. He galloped at a big tree and tried to scrape the boy off. Ken yanked his head around just in time. Then Thunderhead learned how to take the bit in his teeth and run away. It was a rough, fighting gallop, with the weight of the horse's head so heavy in Ken's hands that he was racked to pieces.

THE NEW CHURCH IN THE PAGAN WORLD

LESSON TEXT—I Timothy 6:11-16; I Peter 4:12-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

The church is world-wide in its ministry. Its first experiences of both advance and attack were in Jerusalem, but in due time the Lord pressed its members out into the Gentile world to preach the gospel.

These believers had to meet the challenge of a pagan world, rich, powerful, and steeped in age-old philosophies which ran counter to the teaching of Jesus Christ.

The story of how the church met that situation and came through victorious is one of the most thrilling and important sections of world history. We catch but a few glimpses of that time in the writings of Paul and Peter which make up our lesson today, but even those are full of instruction and inspiration. The church appears here as it went on:

I. Fighting the Good Fight of Faith (I Tim. 6:11-16).

In the letter to Timothy, the Holy Spirit used Paul to instruct the early church regarding its life in the midst of an unbelieving world. In the verses immediately preceding our lesson we find a solemn warning against the wrong attitude of heart toward worldly possessions. "Godliness with contentment" is declared to be great gain.

But there is more to Christianity than inward grace, for that must show itself in daily fighting "the good fight of faith." That is done in three ways:

1. By godly living (v. 11). Believers are to flee those things which hinder spiritual progress, and give themselves to the cultivation of graces of a true Christian life.

Space does not permit discussion of these fine virtues of the faithful follower of Christ, but note how tremendously effective they could be (yes, and are today) against paganism. It is so true that the best argument for Christianity is a Christian, but he must be a real one.

2. In holy warfare (v. 12). Living for Christ is not accomplished by sitting in a spiritual rocking chair while the enemy is on the attack. No indeed. There is a good fight to be waged, both personally and as a body of believers.

"The Son of God goes forth to war" against evil in our day. "Who follows in His train?" Thank God, there are those who are on the battle line for God, but they need reinforcements. Who will volunteer today?

3. With blessed expectation (vv. 13-16). The soldier is ready to bear the "blood, sweat, and tears" of deadly conflict because he looks for victory. The soldier of Christ has a sure hope, for he follows Jesus Christ, already victorious over death, and one day soon to appear again as King of kings and Lord of lords.

In view of that expectation, the Christian is to live a consistent, clean and irreproachable life. And why not? If we look for the glorious and blessed and only Potentate, should we not be ready?

II. Meeting the Fiery Trial of Persecution (I Pet. 4:12-16).

As Peter comforted the sorely tried believers in the early church, he urged them to meet their persecutions:

1. Without confusion (v. 12). We should expect trials in this world; yes, severe, fiery trials. Such things are common to all mankind, and the Christian should not expect to escape.

To them, such trials are real tests of their faith, an opportunity to show to the unbelieving world that God is able to deliver those who put their trust in Him!

To be forewarned is to be forearmed. "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial."

2. With exceeding joy (vv. 13-15). The believer is not to be ashamed of the troubles he bears for Christ's sake. A glory rests upon the one who is privileged to be a "partaker of Christ's suffering" (v. 14) as he stands with Him who was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief" (Isa. 53:3).

Note that the believer is not to do anything which would justify others in making him suffer. It is a disgrace, a shame, which injures the cause of Christ, when a believer has to suffer because he has broken the law, or because he is "a busybody (R. V. 'meddler') in other men's matters."

3. For the glory of God (v. 16). The entire life of the believer should be lived for God's glory. If, then, he is called to pass through trials or to be persecuted for his faith, that, too, is something to be so borne as to glorify God.

The follower of Christ does not hang his head in shame as the difficulties of life come upon him. He trusts God, and by his poise and grace in the midst of difficult circumstances, declares to all the world that God is able to deliver,

With the 30th Infantry Division, Germany: The veteran 30th Division earned its "veteran" tag last summer during the fierce Normandy hedgerow fighting and has demonstrated its combat efficiency to the Germans since. Ruefully the Germans think of the 30th in terms of American victories at St. Lo, Mortain, the Northern France pursuit, the breaching of the Siegfried Line north of Aachen, the drive on the Roer, the crushing of the winter breakthrough in the Ardennes, the strike across the Roer to the banks of the Rhine, the assault on the Rhine and the bewildering spearhead that carried to the Elbe river and fall of the once great city of Magdeburg.

Among the men serving and fighting with this proud division from the 18th Field Artillery Battalion is Pfc. Elmer Mancke of Tinley Park.

A recent arrival at Long Beach Army Air Field, Cal. is 1st Lt. Chas. W. Halper, formerly of Tinley Park who is now stationed with the big Sixth Ferrying Group of the Air Transport Command's Ferrying Division. As a member of Sixth Ferrying Group, Lt. Halper helps accomplish their vital work of ferrying planes from production lines of south ern California to battlefronts the globe around.

In service since 15 January 1943, Halper received his commission, 12 March 1944, and was promoted to his present rank of 1st Lt. 15 November, 1944. He has completed 35 combat missions, and has been awarded the ETO ribbon; the Air Medal, and the Pres. Citation. He is the son of Mr. Chas. A. Halper, 6600 W. 147 St., Tinley Park. TINLEY HOME BUREAU NEWS
The monthly meeting of Bremen Unit was held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Jeffords, June 18 at 11 a.m. with the 4H girls as guests. Mrs. Cornelius demonstrated the art of applying make up to enhance loveliness rather than cover it.

Mrs. Dick Wille Jr. reported a manicure demonstration will be featured at their 4H meeting next Wednesday.

Mrs. Upham presented the major project Short Cuts to Meal Preparation and showed how to eliminate useless motions. It was surprising to see how everyday tasks are done the hard way just because we never took time out to figure if it couldn't be done in less time. She displayed gadgets to speed up work such as tongs, lap tables, blenders, French knives, noodle cutter, corn cutter etc.

The minor lesson Etiquette was equally enjoyed by all. A delicious pot luck lunch furnished by the members was served at noon with a Birthday cake for Charlene Morton who celebrated her 9th birthday. Our chairman Mrs. E. C. Grunst was pleased with the attendance at this meeting. 19 members and 11 4H girls 2 guests being present. They were Miss A. Gallina and Mrs. Marg. Thompson. We are happy to welcome to the Bremen Unit as new members: Mesdames H. G. Oesterreich, F. T. Jenner, Tessie Johnson and Catherine Kneip.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3 by 2nd Lt. Erlene Conel

Now, and on into the future, the most important activity of Squadron 613-3, Civil Air Patrol, is the recruiting and training of the local youth. In view of that, I believe the readers of this column, especially the parents, members of Civic organizations, etc., want, and should know the War Department's attitude toward Civil Air Patrol.

The following is from the War Dept., memorandum issued to all branches of the Armed Forces:

1. "It is desired to clarify certain misconceptions which have arisen at various points thru out the country as to the status of Civil Air Patrol members and the nature in which they are engaged.

2. "Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of the Army Air Forces, is an official AAF agency. The purpose of Civil Air Patrol is to organize public-spirited citizens of civil aviation into a volunteer, semi-military organization to give them supplementary training in military and allied subjects, except flight training; and to supervise the utilization of their skill and equipment in the war effort. The Civil Air Patrol organization consists of 48 State Wings, with local Groups, Squadrons and Flights, organized thru out each State. The entire organization is administered thru a National Headquarters Staff, composed of AAF officers assigned to that duty.

3. "Civil Air Patrol was established Dec. 1, 1941, and has performed many useful services for the armed forces, including 18 months of anti-submarine operations over the coastal shipping lanes in the eastern and gulf sea frontiers from Canada to Mexico, southern liaison patrol on the Mexican border, exercise of aircraft warning systems, tow target tracking missions, camouflage observations, courier missions, radar flight tests, and emergency operations. On these missions, approximately 50,000,000 miles have been flown and over 50 Civil Air Patrol personnel have been killed. At present, CAP is operating for AAF a Nation-wide missing-aircraft search service, and engages in the pre-flight training of 15, 16, and 17 year old CAP cadets for possible future service with the armed forces or in civilian aviation. Also, trained crash crews of local CAP Squadrons thru out the United States are available for volunteer emergency aircraft crash assistance. In addition to service performed for

North American for a cruise to Buffalo, N. Y. Frederick's rating is 11th highest in a class of 185 medical students.

Ladies:-

I have been stationed here in Utah for a year now, and have received the News-Bulletin every week, and it sure is good to read the news from home. I want to thank you ladies of the Women's Club for the Christmas box and the birthday cards I have received.

I know that I do not know very many of you ladies personally as I have not lived in Mokena so very long but it sure is good to know the people back home are thinking about all the boys in the service.

Thanks a lot for everything.
Yours truly, Harold Baker.

the War Dept., CAP also performs emergency missions for other Federal agencies, State Governments, and private industries engaged in the war effort, such as the patrol of forests, pipelines, flooded areas, and the transportation of critical parts and supplies.

4. "Civil Air Patrol members are in no instance deferred from active service with the Armed Forces. They are persons who, not being eligible for the armed forces, are nevertheless anxious to contribute to the war effort more than their regular civilian occupation permit. They serve voluntarily without any pay for their services, sometimes receiving allowances to cover their operation and subsistence costs, but often standing the expenses of such costs themselves.

5. "Members of Civil Air Patrol engaged in the performance of official missions, although acting as civilian volunteers, are required to wear uniforms and insignia authorized by the War Dept. The uniforms and insignia, officers and enlisted men and women, are the same as those of the Army Air Forces with the following distinctive exceptions:

a. CAP shoulder sleeve insignia, to be worn in the same manner as the regulation AAF shoulder sleeve insignia.

b. All buttons to be silver, white metal or white metal finish as presently designed and worn by the CAP.

c. Silver letters "CAP" to replace letters "US" worn on lapel.

d. Silver pilot and observer badge as designed and worn by the Civil Air Patrol.

e. Silver wing and propeller lapel insignia to replace gold and silver wing and propeller insignia worn on Army Air Forces uniform.

f. Cap and silver winged cap insignia as now designed for the Civil Air Patrol."

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Will Corporate Surpluses Endanger Post-War Prosperity?

As debated by

Benjamin C. Marsh
Executive Secretary, The People's Lobby, Inc.

Dr. Alfred P. Haake
Industrial Economist, Author,
Lecturer

MR. MARSH OPENS: The Internal Revenue Bureau reports that at the end of 1941 total assets of corporations reporting were $340.5 billion, an increase of 13.3% since 1938. Surplus and undivided profits of such corporations were $54.7 billion, an increase in 3 years of 12.2%. The 426 corporations with assets over $100 million had nearly half of total—and over two-fifths of surplus and undivided profits. Such surpluses of giant corporations have increased enormously since 1941. They are due to excessive profits from high prices and failure to tax. These surpluses indicate greater profiteering than appears when related to the capitalization which is around $50 billion too high, due to write-ups, stock dividends, putting a scarcity value on natural resources owned, patents, etc. For post-war prosperity we must reduce costs of production. High corporate surpluses invite waste and inefficiency, permitted when speed in war production was vital and government underwrote costs. The post-war economy cannot depend upon the Federal Treasury. Costly campaigns of advertising during war, to retain post-war markets and discourage competition as a threat to future profits, could be charged to costs, and were not taxable. Corporate surpluses permit post-war advertising campaigns to retain monopolies and discourage both government and smaller unit competition. They give loaded dice to big corporations, now trying to grab war plants and equipment government provided.

DR. HAAKE CHALLENGES: In his fanatic antagonism to business, Mr. Marsh forgets we are discussing the importance of corporate surpluses to post-war prosperity. He forgets the favorable position of the few large corporations results from the very tax laws he favors—he is less than honest in his comparisons with 1938 assets which were down appreciably from previous figures. The advertising he criticizes results from unduly high tax rates. It is silly to say advertising is an enemy of competition. Advertising is part of competition! Even Henry Wallace says an excess profits tax must be repealed, other taxes lightened, enabling corporations generally to expand operations and employment after the war.

MR. MARSH REPLIES: I have no antagonism to business and want the maximum of production because there can never be too much of good things since we can all always raise our standards of living—if we have the means. Huge corporate surpluses, as I have stated, do not insure post-war prosperity and large production; on the contrary, they give big corporations which have them the means to curtail production and still pay dividends. Corporate surpluses and other businesses without surpluses have to be on their toes, not on their haunches—and produce to meet fixed charges. Only full production can insure plenty for all.

DR. HAAKE OPENS: Post-war prosperity depends on conversion from war economy to peace economy, with employment of a maximum possible number of persons and resumption of balanced production of civilian goods. This will require scrapping of some war-time facilities and the changing over of others to peace-time activity. It will require the resumption of many which have been dormant during the war, and the renewal or enlargement of others which have been either suspended or curtailed during the war and must now be revived to provide additional employment and civilian production. In any case, additional capital funds are required to finance the process. Those funds can come from government, from commercial banks, from new investors, or from accumulated surpluses of enterprises which have to make the new expenditures. Coming from government, the loans or subsidies further endanger federal credit and solvency and invite national socialism. Coming from banks, the long term borrowings are an added risk to our national financial structure. The small investor is not anxious to risk his money in enterprise under government control. The one safe and sound source of those funds is from corporation or business surpluses. The healthy enterprise is that which grows from its own efforts and accumulations and stands on its own bottom. Corporation surpluses, therefore, are highly favorable and soundly essential to post-war prosperity.

MR. MARSH CHALLENGES: Large surpluses let corporations curtail production for desired profits. They have already gotten huge tax rebates, while their profits after taxes in 1944 were about double the 1941. Big corporations took the lead in getting government to underwrite war production—hence their surpluses. Accumulated excess profits used for capital expansion put small poor enterprises at a disadvantage and is a special privilege. Corporate surpluses entrench private monopoly. We are threatened with 6 to 8 million unemployed after the war, and government must see they are productively employed to prevent serious trouble. Surpluses never guarantee employment—they keep stockholders fat in depressions.

DR. HAAKE REPLIES: Mr. Marsh admits the post-war economy cannot depend upon the Federal Treasury, but nevertheless would destroy corporate surpluses rather than use them to provide post-war employment. He does not understand that surpluses, or accumulations of excess income over expenditure, are the primary source of man's ability to increase the production of goods and his own consequent progress. Without surpluses mankind would still be savage, alternately stuffing and starving. It is too bad Mr. Marsh's bias and spleen lead to such indiscriminate accusations, but it is fortunate their very wildness must defeat them with any sensible reader.

"I have more time to sell War Bonds

THANKS TO MY
AUTOMATIC RANGE"

"I'm going to help our town be out on top in War Bond Sales this year. Yes, I can devote more time to selling bonds—I have my automatic range to thank for that!

"I just plan my meals ahead of time, slip the food into the oven before I leave, set the easy-working automatic timer . . . and away I go! It's really wonderful to know that when I come home a delicious dinner will be all ready to serve.

"Another thing—my automatic range is so clean cooking! It doesn't blacken my pots and pans. Why, I can wash them in a jiffy, as easily as cups and saucers. Accurate heat control keeps food from sticking or boiling over—and saves me many hours of scouring time.

"Yes, there are dozens of reasons why I like my automatic range. One of the best is that I have time to be a War Bond Warden, and still be sure my meals will cook perfectly while I'm away.

"Until we got an automatic range I didn't know how easy it was to be a really good cook. Why, our range cooks fast—it's easy to use, and I find the automatic features do a big part of my cooking job for me. So if you have an automatic range, be sure you take advantage of all the help it can give you."

MORE and BETTER
for farm families

Despite wartime difficulties, nearly 15,000 additional farm and rural telephones have been installed in the territory served by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company since 1940. This increase reflects the intensive efforts of the telephone industry to serve those homes.

Right now war needs come first. But as soon as conditions permit, new materials and construction methods will be put to full use. There's a steel wire, for instance, that requires fewer poles. Also a new kind of insulated wire that can be plowed directly into the ground.

These are two of many telephone developments that will extend and improve the rural telephone and help provide service for every farmer who wants it.

Tinley Servicemen's Letters

3 May, 1945

Dear Friends:

As you can well imagine, the past few weeks have been busy one's and its taken me not a little time to find the time to write and thank you for remembering me at Easter. It was good to receive the lovely card and the stationery. Needless to say, a Serviceman always needs paper and envelopes. Especially envelopes with stamps on them. I get rather tired of sending V-mails because my return address reminds me of a short story, and it's bad enough to write it once without duplicating it as on a V-mail.

I am hoping that it may not be too long before I have the pleasure of meeting all you folks back in my new home. However, that will be for Uncle Sam to decide. That's just one of those things. I suppose I ought to be used to being away from home after so long but the old urge just gets a little more strong all the time I'm all for a little "Foreign Service" in the good old USA and the sooner, the quicker.

Things go on here as usual with a few added attractions. We are now in the throes of an educational and athletic program which just won't quit. In addition to my duties as engineering officer and transportation officer, I now find to my dismay, that I'm also athletic officer, and have to get out twice a day on my Victory Stand and give calisthenics as well as arrange a flock of schedules for baseball, volleyball, tennis, badminton and what have you. It's all good experience though, and I'm not kicking. Oh yes, in addition to that I'm on the entertainment committee over at the Officers Club and that takes not a little time as well. So, if being kept busy will keep a fellow out of mischief, I can't see how I could possibly get into trouble, no matter how hard I might try. Frankly, I'm always too tired to try very hard.

Outside of the things I mentioned, I don't have very much to do but I'm getting used to lolling about in the balmy (?) English weather with time on my hands. Take it from me though when I get back the folks won't see me at all except at mealtimes; the rest of the time, for the first week at least, I'll be catching up on sleep. (I've been meaning to do that for the last three years but I just never seem to get around to it.) Ah, for a rendezvous with morpheus!

Well, that's all this trip. Thanks again for your thoughtfulness; it's always good to be remembered, more so, if one doesn't know the people who do the remembering. So as I said before, I am more than anxious to meet you of the Servicemen's Committee and thank you personally for the favors and remembrances.

So till next time, I remain
Sincerely yours,
Emil Meindl

Servicemen's Committee:

Received your letter of May 3rd. Thanks for telling me about my letters being mixed up.

Yes I still receive the Times. Thanks a lot for that too. Am well and so far enjoy my work, in fact I enjoy it more and more all the time.

I'm sure glad the war in Europe is ended, I hope it indicates a quick end for the Japs also. Anyway it sure is good news.

I meant to thank you for your Easter basket you sent me, it was very sweet of you all. I have been using the writing paper and pencils have nearly used them up. I guess you understand that as Joe is in a submarine I am not sure if he even has the letter intended for you yet. Well, thanks a lot.

Citizens Service Comm.

Dear Friends:

Altho I'm one of the boys closest to home I'm always one of the last to write and thank you for the gifts you sent.

Perhaps its because I see so many of you so often I become neglectful, however that doesn't mean I'm not grateful. I can assure you I am.

The people of Tinley Park have been very nice to us ever since we came there and are more so now that I'm in the Navy. There isn't much I can write about from here so will close and again express my thanks to you all.

Sincerely,
Len Wright

Wednesday afternoon

Members of Citizens Service Com.

As you probably have already guessed, I received the stationary you sent and it is about high time that I drop you a line in thanks for the many gifts that you folks back home are sending to us fellows out here.

I meant to write a long time ago, but everytime we have a few minutes off it seems as though a fellow just don't feel like writing so that is my excuse, as the old saying goes, "A bad excuse is better than none at all" I am correct in the saying I hope.

As for news, well I think you folks back home realize that there isn't much that I can say about the actual doings of the ship but I can say that I am in the very best of health and am in hopes of seeing you in the near future.

I hate to admit it, but I am afraid this is where my story ends, so until next time thank you again.

I remain,

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

A few lines to let you know I am receiving my Orland Park Herald, regular. After an absence of the paper for nearly 4 months it is arriving in good time now and I got two or three copies in one week. I just finished reading an edition and figured,

I had better appreciate it even tho the news is old, its better than ever. I sure have traveled a great deal here and I have been most fortunate in having a chance to see some of the very beautiful country. One simply can not realize why the German people wanted to conquer more land, when they have so much already.

There are many beautiful farms around us, but the town is about 85 percent destroyed. The bombers and heavy artillery sure have to be given a lot of credit.

Again I want to thank you for sending the paper and maybe soon, we can all be reading our paper right in our own homes.

Thanks again from an Orland soldier,

Looking Ahead

IT IS NOW high time for every soul in the United States, who loves his happy home and peaceful surroundings, to learn more of the character of our straw-colored allies beyond the Pacific. We owe our national safety to them. If it were not for their integrity we would be held in a nutcracker between Germany and Japan at this hour, if we were yet able to fight at all.

Americans are a tender-hearted folk. We sympathize with other peoples and half-way try to understand them, but we don't usually admire them very much. We felt sorry for the Poles when the Nazis took them in 18 days. Our hearts went out to the Norwegians because they didn't last three weeks. We wept with our British relatives over Dunkirk, but we did more. We admired the British.

China LATE in 1937 the city of Nanking, China, fell to the Japanese. Strategists thought that was about the end. If China had folded up the next day, few people would have blamed her. We Americans would have turned the spigot in our sympathy tank again and drawn out a generous sprinkling of tears for dear old China, and then tried to forget it. But couldn't.

If China had fallen in 1937, four years before the Pearl Harbor raid, any child can guess why we Americans would still be remembering it. But China did not fall. It would not be amiss for devout people to give thanks at the table three times a day that China did not fall. If China had fallen Japan could have knifed Russia on the unguarded side, right through Manchuria: surely would have done so.

Thank BACK in those early China months of the present war when the Germans were all but knocking at the doors of Moscow, our big old globe, as now arranged, was coming unglued. If Japan could have drawn close enough to attack Russia from behind, the Germans would have marched into Moscow. Then, with no Russia to annoy him, Hitler would have parched London to a cinder.

China stayed in and fought, so London remains. China stood the gaff, so we still have San Francisco. China could take privation and punishment; her share and ours too. As a consequence no bomb has struck an American city. Moreover China's young men have made their fight as nearly bare-fisted as any army in this war, large or small, on either side.

In recent weeks there have been frequent criticisms of China, of Chinese fortitude, of China's disunity, of Chiang Kai-Shek's generalship. Let me close with this admonition. Criticism of China in America today, true or false, has one purpose and one only. It is to break up unity among our allies. Our enemies can hope to survive by no other means. Don't listen to it!

Big Peach Crop In View

United States orchards this year are expected to produce around 2,280,000 more bushels of peaches than a year ago, according to the War Food Administration, and supplies of this fine fruit are increasing daily on Chicago markets. In its commercial and economic importance in this country, the peach is second only to the apple among deciduous tree fruit. Commercial peach interests exist in three quarters of the states with some home plantings in most of the others.

Prices on the early varieties now offered in this area are edging lower. Among them are such freestone peaches as the white fleshed Hiley, which is a fine dessert peach, and the yellow fleshed Golden Jubilee. There are also some early Elbertas arriving and the Elberta is the favorite of home canners.

Verel Rogers

BIG Bill Tilden opened up an interesting angle on the matter of concentration recently in a long discussion we had upon this important topic. It was Tilden's idea that tennis called for more concentration than golf or any other sport, for this reason:

"In golf you play the game stroke by stroke. You know where your tee shot should go — and then there's the green. But in tennis you have to map out your tactics or strategy several strokes ahead. You work to get your opponent into a certain spot where he can't make a return. This may call for many strokes, here and there. In tennis you have extended concentration. In golf and baseball it is more limited. It is usually only the next play."

Greasy Neale, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, disagreed with this, as far as football goes.

"In football," Greasy said, "we frequently run two or three plays to set up the third or fourth play. This, of course, is up to the quarter-back, or whoever is running the team."

"I know," Tilden said, "but in football you have 11 men to figure with. In tennis you are all alone. Just as you are in a boxing match where it is man against man—not team against team, I still say that tennis, for the individual, calls for more concentration than any other single sport."

At this point I recalled a story that Ty Cobb had told me. As a rule baseball is played hit by hit or run by run. The main part of baseball's concentration is on the next play—the pitcher, the man at bat or the defense. But Ty Cobb once told me of three games he had won against the Yankees in the old days—three plays he had planned over two months ahead.

"All I worked on," Ty said, "was the right opening. You have to wait for that. I just happened to spot certain weak spots in their defense—and when the right time came it was a push over. But I still had to remember what these weak spots were over a period of two months." This is what I call the peak of extended concentration. But there were never many Ty Cobbs hanging around.

Mind on the Game

Few people connected with sport, and this includes both coaches and players, quite get the point on concentration. Concentration happens to be the ability of thinking of the right thing at the right time.

"Do you know," Tommy Armour once told me, "that not one man in a hundred can concentrate for more than a minute at a time?" I checked later, and found this was true. I mean full concentration.

The so-called human brain isn't equipped any other way. It only operates in spots or spells. For example, Jack Dempsey could concentrate against a big, slow-moving heavyweight. But Jack was never so hot against a fast boxer such as Tunney, Gibbons or Greb.

Concentration is the most important single word in sport—but few even know what the word really means.

Knut Rockne used to tell me—"I want my teams physically relaxed—but mentally keen." The angle here is that teams mentally keen are physically relaxed. For the brain or the mind or whatever it is usually dominates the muscular system. It is from the brain that the message comes. Certainly the subconscious mind plays its part. But it is the acting, conscious kind that plays a much larger part.

Hurry-up Yost once told me that he would rather coach an Army team at West Point than any other squad.

"Why?" I asked him. "Because," Yost said, "each member of that Army squad was listening to every word I said. This squad was trained in discipline. At Michigan and other places I found no such response."

Ask the average golf instructor. He will tell you that 80 per cent of his pupils never concentrate on any lesson. They can't even remember what they were told to do. Who have been the great concentrators in sport? Big Bill Tilden was one. So was Bobby Jones. So was Walter Hagen. So was Rogers Hornsby. So was Ty Cobb, possibly the greatest of them all. So was Harry Greb. And so is Byron Nelson.

Victory by Putting

During the recent Nelson-Snead golf match for wounded servicemen, we ran across numerous instructors and asked for any tips they might have to offer the unwary swinger trying to break a 90 or an 85. And here were the main suggestions:

1. On the long approach putt, first decide on the speed of the green—fast, slow or normal.
2. Get what you think is the line.
3. Now concentrate entirely on stroking the ball.

Larger Acre Yields Receive Weather Aid

Major Role Played In Control of Pests

During the war years good weather has consistently pushed yields of crops beyond what would be expected with ordinary conditions and improved farming practices.

Additional credit for high acre yields during the war years is attributed by Agricultural Adjustment agency reports to the widespread increase of land conservation practices, which aid in producing bigger crops from the same planted acreage.

The problem for farmers lies in the fact that it is not easy to guess which pests will increase and which crops will be attacked, since weather conditions are very likely to encourage some pests while reducing others. Last fall, for instance, unusually large populations of several serious crop pests went into hibernation. As a result, observations now show that many, such as chinch bugs, the boll weevil, the codling moth, and the cattle pests, the screwworm, began the season with the largest over-wintering population in many years.

Although entomologists do not predict that increased insect damage is inevitable this year, they urge farmers to be more watchful than usual throughout the season, and to take definite steps to save crops and animals. Ordering insecticides and equipment now, before pests have attacked crops, is vital to proper handling of the situation.

Wasteful Branding

Cuts Stockmen's Profit

The stock raisers of America are losing more than $10,000,000 a year by faulty branding. Considered necessary on the ranges to identify ownership, and required by law in some sections, it is possible to brand cattle without material damage to the hide.

The value of the hide represents 50 per cent of the by-products, and the purchase price of all cattle is determined by value of by-products as well as meat. This makes it essential that when branding is desirable, that the brands be as small as possible, and placed on jaws, neck—or that acid branding be used.

In the past, due to direct market value of hides, producers have paid little attention to the condition of the hide. Ticks, grubs and brands, which had ruined hide, were not considered seriously. The attitude has been, "when we get paid a good price for hides, we will turn out a quality hide." Despite the justice in this attitude, the farmer not only is losing 10 million dollars annually, but the men in service are out 3 million pair of shoes—and rationing of civilian shoes must continue.

Hog Cholera Serum

The loss among hogs from hog cholera has been reduced 80 per cent since the discovery and use of the preventive serum-virus treatment. While sanitation is essential, it is not always possible to protect hogs by sanitation alone.

The most dependable preventive is to keep the entire swine herd immunized by the serum-virus method. Since dosage is governed by weight, it is more economical to treat pigs while still young.

Washington, D. C.

'GOOP BOMBS' HIT JAPAN
WASHINGTON.—The inside story of how the army and navy are burning up Japan's main cities, block by block, may now be revealed at least in part.

The two greatest contributions to the burning of Japan are the B-29 and a new, still somewhat mysterious fire-bomb known as the "goop bomb." Just how the "goop bomb" got its name isn't known. However, it's the most terrible fire spreader in the world. Part of its secret is an oily mush developed by petroleum chemists. This makes the contents of the bombs stick in glue-like gobs to anything it hits, making it almost impossible for Japanese fire-fighters to scrape it loose.

However, what really made the bomb the most terrible in the world was experiments carried out by some of Henry Kaiser's West coast scientists. They found Kaiser had a surplus of fast burning, white-hot magnesium production on his hands, and they also knew one of the greatest difficulties in making magnesium is its high explosive content. So they experimented with mixing magnesium dust in the oil of the bomb.

This magnesium dust lights up in a searing blaze as soon as it comes in contact with air. Result is the hottest fire ever known.

Most important effect of the "goop bomb" is that no known fire-fighting equipment can douse its flames. Water only adds to the blaze; as do any of the other specialized fire-fighting chemicals. All the Japs do now against the "goop bomb" is to try to confine the area in which it burns, not put it out.

This is one reason for increasing optimism about an early end of the Jap war.

CONTINUED CENSORSHIP

With the European war over, everyone expected press censorship to ease up. In some respects, however, especially in the Pacific, it is getting tougher.

Not only are newspapers barred from even speculating regarding certain international phases of the Pacific war, but the navy for some weird reason hushed up the bombing of the airplane carrier Franklin from April 26, when she got to New York, to May 17, when the disaster finally was announced. There were obvious reasons for keeping the news quiet while the ship was en route through the Panama canal. But once it passed the canal and was safely tied up in New York, all danger was past, however, the navy still invoked censorship.

AMERICA'S NO. ONE HEEL

Former OPA Administrator Leon Henderson is a sad man these days. Every time he picks up the newspapers, he reads story after story telling how Washington has given some manufacturer permission to produce again.

Henderson recalls how he gained the reputation of being "America's No. 1 heel," by cutting down the American civilian consumption to almost zero.

"If I could only change all that," moans Henderson. "If the President would only give me a job for one week—just one short week—in which I could give the people back some of the things I took away from them. Then folks wouldn't think I'm such a bad guy after all."

DIPLOMATIC CHAFF

South Africa's prime minister Jan Christian Smuts seldom speaks but when he does, every one listens.

Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakia's foreign minister, has been the most effective go-between in conciliating Russian-western differences.

Sen. Glenn Taylor of Idaho has used only five gallons of gas since arriving in Washington—an example which could be emulated by a lot of other bigwigs.

Secret service is on the trail of a counterfeiting ring which has circulated hundreds of thousands of spurious one dollar bills. . . . They all bear the same serial number, are considered one of the cleverest jobs recently pulled.

One reason General Eisenhower and his staff have been so upset about congressmen visiting the battle zones is that when the Germans counterattacked last December, the Nazis sent a powerful paratroop force to take the little town of Cernay. Had they landed one week earlier to the hour, they would have captured the entire house military affairs committee delegation then in France.

Correspondents refer to Secretary of State Stettinius as "Junior."

Wives of some conference delegates are having a field day buying clothes. . . . One woman marched into the hat section of a department store, grabbed up 40 chapeaux without even trying them all on.

The navy department has done a bang up job convincing delegates of America's military might. . . . The navy takes delegates on blimp rides, boat rides, and airplane tours of West coast navy installations showing them America's striking power first hand.

Notes of a Newspaperman:

Telegram: "Poetic Justice. The dramatic reversal of the Reichstag trial. Goering prosecuted Georgi Dimitroff in the frame-up blaming Dimitroff for starting the Reichstag fire. And today Dimitroff is prosecuting 'Meyer' Goering! Isn't it wonderful?" — Ralph Berendt, New York City.

A Russian delegate to the Security Conference was trying to throw some light on the muddled situation in China (for a perplexed journalist) before Chiang "technically" resigned his premiership.

"But why," asked the writer, "is unity so hard to establish in China, if both the Chungking Gov't and Communist guerrilla forces want to destroy the Japanese?"

"Perhaps it is best explained by saying that it is an old custom for Chiang to fight the Communists," replied the delegate, "and he has such love for ancient institutions that he will not look at the new moon, out of respect for the old one."

British soldiers who witnessed the capture of Lord Haw Haw gave him the English equivalent of the Bronx cheer. One yelled derisively: "Boys, take a look at Lord Hee-Haw, the man who brayed like a donkey!" Another Tommy (in the group standing at ease) commented: "That reminds me of the time all the donkey-cart drivers in Britain went on strike. They sent a delegation to 10 Downing street, and the man who was spokesman told Winnie: 'We're going to stay off the job until you do something about that fellow in Berlin, named Lord Haw Haw. Our donkeys have been listening to his broadcasts, and now every jackass thinks he can be a radio commentator!'"

According to the best-informed gossip, Joe Davies' flying trip to see Churchill was for the purpose of soft-pedaling the anti-Soviet hysteria which has been emanating from the London-Washington pipeline in recent weeks. Capitol politicians have dug deep into "the guess-what-for" basket. In a discussion between two Administration Senators, one remarked: "I doubt if Davies will be as successful with Churchill as he has been with 'Uncle Joe.'"

"Don't worry," counselled the other. "Davies is a wise and honest man. Trouble with most of our diplomats is that we appoint them to avert situations which would never occur if they weren't our diplomats in the first place."

When about to bury Himmler, it's said that a British soldier assigned to the job speculated in ironic vein: "Don't you think, sergeant, that we ought to pay some touching tribute to the deceased?"

"Yes, indeed," mused the top-kick. "I will now say a few words," and he began: "Dear Lord, we are now delivering up to you—" at which point he was stopped by one of the Tommies, who spat and said: "Let's get 'im underground, 'e smells awful!"

To which the sergeant intoned: "What do you expect from a skunk—perfume?"

The Love Letters of a Columnist:

In a broadcast from Tokyo the other day (heard by the FCC) the Mikadomei News Agency heaped praises on Joe Stalin for his "powerful leadership based on Sovietism," which "finally overcame a danger of defeat far greater than the one facing the Japanese at present."

When the item was carried in the Russian press, it was the cause for some ironic comment by the down-to-earth Muscovites. One gray-beard was overheard remarking: "When the fox begins to praise the rooster, and tells him he is a fine bird, the rooster had better be ready to fly for his life."

Out of a long, painful experience, Abraham Lincoln wrote five sentences which all of us would do well to study: "If I tried to read, much less answer, all the criticisms made of me and all the attacks leveled against me, this office would have to be closed for all other business. I do the best I know how, the very best I can. I mean to keep on doing this, down to the very end. If the end brings me out all wrong, then 10 angels swearing I had been right would make no difference. If the end brings me out all right, then what is said against me now will not amount to anything."

It's the latest silly going around. A subway strap-hanger kept staring long and affectionately at a man who was sitting down. The fellow who was being stared at became uncomfortable under the other's stare. Finally, the strap-hanger said: "You must excuse my looking at you so hard, but if it weren't for the moustache you would be exactly like my wife."

The man sitting down said: "I haven't got a moustache." The strap-hanger answered: "No, but my wife has."

SNAPPY FACTS

about RUBBER

Before the end of 1945, synthetic rubber production will probably be at the rate of a million tons a year. This record has been accomplished in three years, since the fall of Singapore.

Since Pearl Harbor, passenger cars have carried 75 per cent of the country's local essential transportation load and have been the means of carrying four out of five war workers to and from their jobs.

When Your Back Hurts

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known.
